Mrs. Panda Bear has a toy Panda Bear with a red shiny balloon in her hand.

She also had a car that Mr. Panda Bear gave her on Valentines day. She put the toy Panda Bear into the car and performed in the circus. When the show was over Mrs. Panda Bear went to a shop called Panda Bear Circus Outfits. She bought a skirt that had hearts on it and she bought a cool shirt. Mrs. Panda Bear then had a dress rehearsal. Her boss told her to do a trick that looked dangerous to the audience. She borrowed two tight rope sticks and the longest rope of all. The circus began and she started across the tight rope. Some clowns wearing ladies clothes came by with a cage on their heads filled with tame animals which were dangerous looking. They did not roar. The clowns put the cages down under the tight rope and opened the top of the cage. Then Mrs. Panda Bear walked on her hands and went across the tight rope. She did not fall. She was walking on her hands when one of the clowns put her toy Panda Bear on her back paws and it did not fall. Next she jumped into a tub of water and she floated in the water and still the Panda Bear did not fall off her feet. She jumped out of the water and put the toy Panda Bear on the car. After that she went into the cage of the tame lion and tigers. They looked mad but they did not bite or try to kill her. They just licked her and Mrs. Panda Bear gave them their favorite treat. Mrs. Panda Bear let them out of their cages and the lion jumped through a fire hoop. She did not get hurt. The tiger was next. He sat on the stool and when Mrs. Panda Bear said, "Tiger r r", the tiger jumped on the stool two times on his tail. On the second jump he jumped high to the top of the tent and then went down speedy quick and no one heard a bump but just a little tap. Then a clown came and said dog-doo-doo quoo quoo goo goo oo oo boo boo! Everyone laughed so hard that they fell asleep and when they fell asleep they were safe and sound in their cuddly beds. Then Mr. Panda Bear gave the toy Panda Bears to the people who had gone to sleep.

The End.
